State fire officials to inspect Gulfview

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Mississippi Chief Deputy Fire Marshal John Aschmies of Jackson and Deputy Fire Marshal Norman Cowart of Wiggins are expected to inspect Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshire this week and particularly its heating system for fire hazards.

Officials also might inspect all Hancock County School District schools for fire hazards.

The state inspection results from heating system fire hazards and violations of the Mississippi Liquid Petroleum Gas Code found Tuesday by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Arson Investigation Squad. Classrooms at Gulfview will be unheated until the infractions are corrected.

Ed Friloux of the county squad, Wednesday confirmed that an investigation was conducted Tuesday after a complaint was received regarding the safety of the heating system. The investigator said he and Jay Marsh, another squad member, found that a multi-wall vent pipe required by the state code was not installed on Gulfview's heater.

He also reported a required six-inch vent pipe spacing collar was also not installed through the ceiling and roof of the building.

Friloux said the collar is necessary especially since flammable roofing felt paper and plastic foam surround the vent pipe.

"The foam shows signs of heating decomposition," he stated.

"We were also informed that safety features on the heating appliance were not working," Friloux reported.

The inspector said since he was not a qualified technician, an evaluation of the safety features was not conducted.

"The heater burners showed signs of rust and soot which could possibly affect the gas flow and could even conceivably cause an explosion," he stated.

Friloux also confirmed that "housekeeping is poor" in the heater boiler room where he said wooden soft drink cases and empty paper cigarette packs were found.

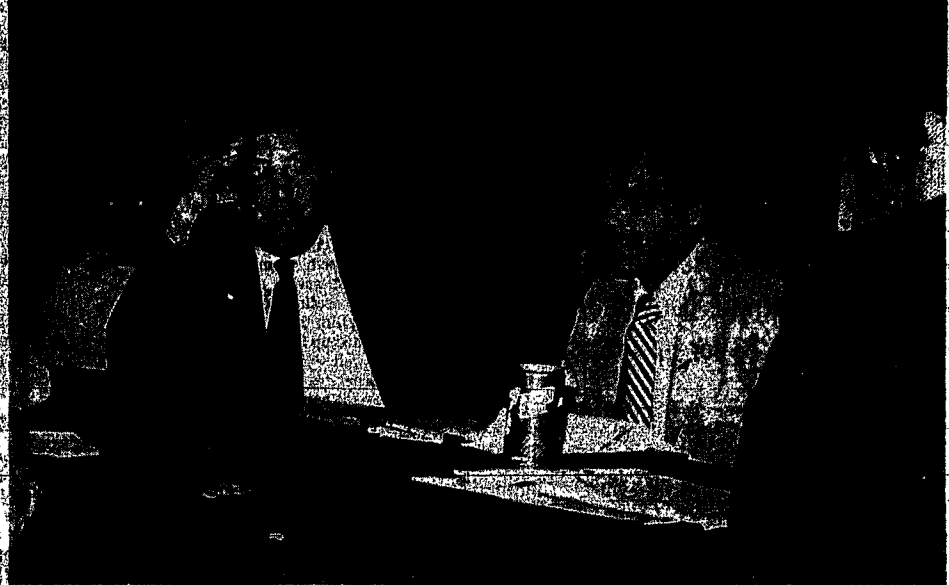

"We were informed that in-house maintenance personnel would correct the problems. Under the state code only certified LPG maintenance people are authorized to work on heaters in public buildings," he stated.

Friloux said the state was informed that the violations are expected to be corrected. The investigator noted that state law in such situations requires the state fire marshal to inspect the entire school for fire hazards and possibly all the county schools as well.

"As long as the heating system is not used, there is no danger to the children at the school. I would not take responsibility for turning on that heater," Friloux stated.

"This is something not too major, but these violations must be corrected. You could use the heater in its present condition and nothing might happen in 10 years or you could turn it on and it would blow up tomorrow," he said.

"This is not the fault of the school board, the superintendent or the principal," Friloux stated.

School leaders eye settlement in Gulfview case

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Hancock County School Board Tuesday morning met with its attorney to discuss the possibility of reaching a settlement with the state regarding repairs to Gulfview Elementary School. The school board members Woodrow and Louie Ladner, Johnny Banks and Manuel Cuevas, former board member Oris Ladner, and Superintendent of Education Billy D. Sills to repay $345,000 to the school district.

Gulfview was extensively damaged by a May 1980 tornado.

The school board authorized payments that summer to several companies and individuals amounting to $304,504 for various repairs at the school.

King recently threatened to file a civil lawsuit against the school for funds which the state contends were misappropriated.

Each of the six officials are covered by $10,000 performance bonds, as required by law and $1 million personal liability policies.

Joseph Gex, board attorney, Tuesday said the state is still demanding payment, but has not filed suit against the officials.

The attorney said the board discussed the possibility of a settlement with the state in lieu of bringing the case to court, but would not speculate what type of agreement would be reached.

Attending the meeting were Woodrow Ladner, Banks, Cuevas, Sills and Gex.

Also at the meeting, Woodrow Ladner requested that job descriptions be updated for non-certified personnel and teachers.

"We need to update them (the job descriptions) and see that people stay within the boundaries of the jobs as described," Ladner stated.

Hancock legislators seeking law allowing student awards

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Rep. J.P. Compretia of Hancock County Monday night informed the County School Board the State House of Representatives Education Committee is considering legislation which would allow school districts to purchase awards for student athletes.

Sen. Martin Smith of Poplarville, who represents Hancock and Pearl River Counties, and Compretia both met with the school leaders to discuss amending state laws forbidding purchase of the awards and other local legislative needs.

Hancock schools and institutions throughout the state have in the past purchased student awards, but this widespread policy was recently halted after a school district requested a State Attorney General's opinion.

The attorney general's office found existing state laws, in force for more than 30 years, do not allow expenditure of student activity funds for student awards.

Compretia said a rough draft of proposed legislation to change the state law was recently sent to the State Attorney General for his review and suggestions.

Also attending the meeting were booster club presidents Pat Patterson of Gulfview Elementary School, Jewel Prince of Hancock North Central Ele-

Chamber names Gibson outstanding citizen

By BRENT MACEY
More than 200 people attended the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce ceremony in the Diamondhead Country Club Saturday night to witness the presentation of an Outstanding Citizen Award.

Entertainment was provided by Southern Exposure, a musical troupe from the University of Southern Mississippi, who performed several routines and quick changes after a chicken and wild rice meal was served.

Perry F. Gibson, manager of the Mississippi Power company in Bay St. Louis, was named Outstanding Citizen.

By BRENT MACEY
By a narrow margin, the Bay St. Louis City Council passed a resolution authorizing a $33,468 payment to Southland Enterprises of Gulfport for work done repairing city streets and sewer lines in late September of this year.

The council voted 3-2 in favor of making the payment. Councilmen Gene Taylor and James Thrifflay were opposed. Council President Wilmer Seymour and Councilmen Harry Farve and Sheldon Seuzeneau were in favor.

The resolution included an explanation for making the payment. Questions about the payment were raised by Taylor several meetings ago when he noted "correct procedure" in hiring the company was not followed by Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett. Taylor again raised questions Tuesday, pointing to several statutes in the Mississippi Code which mention correct procedure to follow when hiring a firm. A second statute refers to liability of governing officials who approve payments not authorized by state statute.

State statutes require bids be obtained for work exceeding $10,000 unless the work is approved by the council as an emergency. Also, the work must be approved by the council.

In the case of Southland Enterprises, Bennett hired the company directly, without obtaining approval of the council in a public meeting, without an

Tri-county senate district plan ok'd

By BRENT MACEY
A Mississippi senate redistricting plan which includes Hancock County in a new district with portions of Harrison and Jackson Counties was approved Tuesday by a Special Joint Legislative Reapportionment Committee.

The plan will be presented to a Senate Election Committee and House Election Committee Jan. 5, where minor changes are expected before the plan will be voted on by the entire legislature in January.

Hancock State Sen. Martin Smith Tuesday said the plan was approved by the committee.

Those changes would reconstitute the National State Representative to the new tri-county district.

That precinct, which has no registered voters, had been in the hands of a group of individuals who had been using it for illegal activities.

Bits 'n pieces

The State Highway Department did a fine job repairing the shoulders of Hwy. 603 at the intersections of Longfellow and Nicholson Avenue.

We are glad they used black topping this time, because we as motorists really appreciate the removal of the holes by the turn-offs.

We also noted State Highway Department workers on Monday doing some drainage work in the Kiln area.

We are glad to see the improvements and prompt action.

Just about everyone should have smiles on their faces this week with the refund checks from the power companies.

A lot of money is being circulated in the Coastal area, and it comes at a good time.

The refunds in our area are from Mississippi Power Company and Coast Electric Power Association to members during 1975-80.

It is from a settlement made by The Peabody Coal Company because of contract violations.

The checks are in varying amounts depending upon the amount of electricity used during the five year period. Some checks are as little as $1 while others are in three figures.

We hope the mail carriers do not get a backache.

It seems the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Christmas Tree has to be placed behind bars for safekeeping.

We feel it is an outrage for a culprit to remove the Christmas Tree. They should have seen the looks on the faces of so many youngsters with the arrival of Santa several days ago.

This is not the first year for the Christmas Tree to be disturbed and we wonder if other areas have the same problems.

We hope the culprit is given just punishment, as a lot of effort on the parts of many people go into providing the Christmas Tree and ceremonies.

Congratulations are in store for Perry Gibson on his being selected as the Outstanding Citizen for 1981 by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Perry is very active in the community and plays a very important part in whatever position he assumes.

We have known Perry since he took over the Mississippi Power Company office in Bay St. Louis and he has been a good friend.

We know the citizens of Waveland are very proud to have him as a resident of their fine city.

The honors could not have been bestowed on a finer citizen than Gibson.

The Chamber should be commended upon its selection.

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

The people from the local newspaper keep after me every year to run an anniversary ad for our store. But, this seems to me like giving yourself a birthday party. What do you think?

Dear WDY: I can see how you might be reluctant to run an ad congratulating yourself on having been in business that long.

But, I think you are simply viewing the matter from the wrong perspective.

An anniversary is a most appropriate time to express your appreciation to your customers, employees, business neighbors, etc. Not only is it a generous gesture on your part, but it will probably come at a time when other businesses are not running the same kind of notices — such as Thanksgiving or Christmas.

Many stores have special prices for the anniversary — some have store-wide sales. But, the use is not so much congratulating themselves as it is an expression of appreciation. Such notices also serve as reminders to prospects in the community who may be potential customers, that you are in business. There is quite a turnover in the population, and this combined with the relatively short memory of most of the buying public, makes such reminders good investments.

Using pictures of the staff, inside the place, or business gives anniversary ads the additional positive function of helping to build employee morale.

If you have old pictures from the grand opening, or any earlier photos of the place of business, to run along with the new photos, the historical perspective of the ad will be sharpened.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

Humane Society defends position against classified ad allegations

Dec. 7, 1981
Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:
This letter is being written to clarify statements contained in ads of The Sea Coast Echo December 3, 1981 and December 6, 1981 which name the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc.

On February 17, 1980, the party who placed the aforementioned ads offered to keep nine puppies, born December 19, 1979, for the Society until said puppies were adopted.

The agreement was that, as is usual in a case of this type, the Society would pay all medical expenses and food bills as well as newspaper advertising, until adoption.

We find this private home care is necessary because people who live in the county do not have access to an animal warden for pick-up service or to a shelter in which to drop off unwanted animals.

The cities, unless for emergencies, will not send their wardens in the county. They take the position that the county does not pay any part of this service and they will not use city tax funds on county residents.

The Society therefore often accepts offers from people who will furnish temporary shelter for these unfortunate animals at the Society's expense.

In this particular case, six of the puppies were adopted with no trouble, and still calls came in answer to our ads.

After the sixth adoption, prospective clients called us back to say they were being refused puppies because they were told "the puppies have a rash."

After three such calls we called this party who verified this statement saying adoptions were being halted until "we clear up the rash."

The Society investigated and inspected the puppies but found no appreciable skin lesions. However, to speed things along, we authorized future doctor visits telling the party that we would be cancelling the ad until the skin condition cleared to her satisfaction.

She had only to call us when she was ready to begin adoptions again. We heard no more from this person despite repeated calls to her. Members of her family promised to "give her the message," and she would contact us. She never has.

As this party was an active participant of our spray-neuter program, having more than 15 animals sterilized through us, we were aware she knew how to contact us. So we awaited her decision, in vain.

In these ads of December 3 and 6, 1981, the dogs were said to be "one-year-old" females. Puppies born on December 19, 1979, are not one-year-old on December 3, 1981.

Our policy is that if a person has an animal for 30 days after refusing or ignoring our offers to have it adopted, then the animal is no longer our responsibility. No where in the United States could a humane society be found that can afford to pay indefinitely all expenses for the animals adopted out. We are no exception.

The Bay-Waveland Humane Society is composed of people who are volunteers. They give their services in this heartbreaking work willingly, without payment or salary from private or political sources.

Never have we saddled people with animals to be adopted out, then forgotten about them not furnishing food or whatever is necessary to close the case satisfactorily.

The Society considers this attack upon its integrity unprovoked and unfair. We do our best to serve the community under trying circumstances and with limited funds.

We hope this letter will present a clear picture of the Society's position in this case.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Rosemary Malandra,
Secretary

Retired milkman decries political manipulations in dairy industry

Nov. 25, 1981
Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:
It humiliated me to think that for 30 years I made a hard but honorable living from an honorable business that is today nothing less than a politically controlled conspiracy.

Several weeks ago I picked up a gallon of milk in a local chain store and was dumbfounded to find that the price had increased 20 cents in one week — 15 percent.

My disbelief was soon to be answered. Later that same day I read of theassel over the three percent proposed milk subsidy increase in Washington.

Yes! Reagan successfully opposed the suggested increase.

The present support price is $13.10 per 100 pounds. If, as a long time ago, there is still 6.6 pounds of milk per gallon, we have 11,629 gallons per 100 pounds.

That divided to $13.10 per gallon the government — you the taxpayer — is paying milk producers to produce milk the consumer is deprived of.

This over-production, this government stock pile has reached 14 billion pounds, and this year they are going to use another two billion of your tax dollars to buy more unsold dairy products to add to this stock pile.

If the most costly subsidy we have, the people are being grossly deceived.

Because of high and increasing prices, which mean higher prices for at the check-out counter — dairy farmers have greatly expanded production at a time when milk consumption is dwindling — why? Because our overpaid politicians who can afford to pay any price are using nature's most precious food for a political football — vote-getter — while being unconcerned about depriving deserving children of a glass of milk they can't afford.

Remember the political milk scandal several years back? Remember Nixon and other high ranking officials were accused of accepting bribes from the dairy industry?

Remember our own representative — a mere tot in Washington at that time — telling us through the news media that he had legally and justifiably received $2,500?

Legal? You decide.

Justifiable? I wonder if he once thought of how many needy children could have gotten an extra glass of milk out of that $2,500 of taxpayer's money?

If it were possible today for our retailers to be satisfied with an "honorable" profit, we would already have paid politicians forced out of the dairy business, and the processes eliminate their greed. I feel sure milk prices would automatically decrease 20 percent.

I urge 60 percent of our tax paying public don't know that they are just voluntarily involved in the milk-producing industry. In short, being deceived.

the community and other concerned parents.

One morning my daughter informed that her teacher put his hand at her neck and patted her down back to below her buttocks.

I called the school to talk to the principal and he didn't seem to be interested.

Then I called the superintendent of education and was informed that it was up to the principal.

When my daughter returned from school I asked her if the principal talked to her and she said he did not.

The next morning I called the school again to find out what was being done about it. He stated that the teacher denied it. I made a few other calls to find out what I could do about it and was informed that because my child was only 10 years old and the teacher was an adult, his word would be taken over hers.

A meeting was set up for the parties involved. It was set for one time and when I got there it was changed.

It appears to me that they hadn't enough time to get things straight.

To make a long story short, during the meeting the principal and the other party was defending the teacher all the way, without one word in favor of the child.

My child was questioned with several different questions trying to trip her up, but she answered them all without changing her story.

The principal said the teacher was being charged with one thing and it was another.

He stated the child said he looked under her dress, and she wore pants to school.

When the teacher was asked if he had anything to say, he responded by saying that if he did it he doesn't remember doing it, because there is always someone at his desk.

He never denied or admitted doing it.

Another member of the meeting stated he could understand how it happened because some teachers are touchy and that it was probably in the child's mind and just a friendly affectionate pat, which didn't mean anything.

How can he come up with that decision if the teacher doesn't remember if he did it?

What right does the child have if everyone is going to stand behind the adult who doesn't remember?

From the meeting and the telephone calls I made I came up with the impression that as long as the adult says he didn't and the child says he did, the adult is right and can get away with it.

No one in their right mind would admit to doing anything like that, knowing it is against the law.

So now I have to send my child away from home to go to school or to her continue to go to the same school with the fear of something else like that happening again.

Or maybe the incident will be taken out through her grades.

All of that because the children have no rights or no one standing behind them but their parents.

Must this continue until a student is hurt whether it is emotional or physical?

I hope this letter will make other concerned parents who have had this experience with their children start speaking up for them before it is too late.

Even though the law won't stand behind them it would make the child feel like someone is there for him.

And it won't be swept under the rug like it was with my child.

I think she had an unfair hearing because everyone stood behind the teacher that couldn't remember.

Dear Sir:
To recognize Boy Scout Troop 227, sponsored by the First Baptist Church.

The boys and their scoutmaster Steve Laneaux, and coordinator Rev. Howard Sheppard, launched a clean up drive Saturday morning.

They picked up and bagged trash on Sycamore Street from Third Street to the Old Spanish Trail.

The bags were neatly tied and left waiting for the city workers to pick up. It was a job well done. I wish the idea would rub off on the residents of this area.

Dear Editor:
Last week in our community a young woman (legally a child) suffered the horrifying, traumatic crime of rape.

Who is responsible? A deranged perpetrator? A man already and recently tried and convicted of rape and sent to the penitentiary (So we thought).

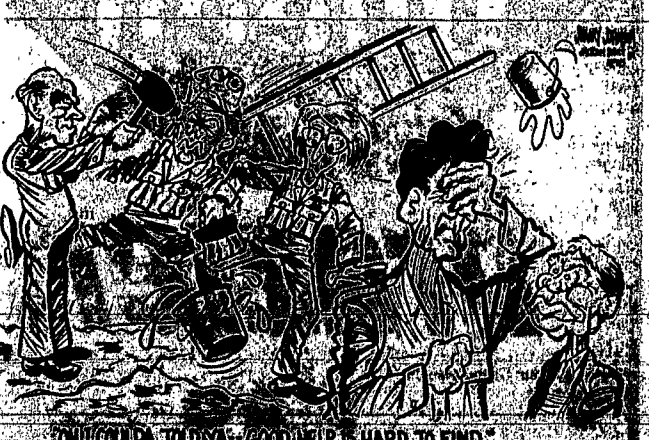

No, the crime was committed by the person in authority, who unlocked the jail and let dangerous inmates back into our midst.

What must be done to protect our children?

I call for a full scale investigation into the system that turns loose dangerous criminals on our children.

Dollar renews efforts for open records measure

Hoping that the third time will be the charm when the 1982 Session begins, State Representative Dennis Dollar of Gulfport reports he will once again introduce for the consideration of the Mississippi Legislature a bill to open most records of government at the state and local level.

Dollar, who has introduced similar legislation in the past two sessions, said that he was "cautiously optimistic that the bill's chances for passage were better than ever before."

"Each year the support for open records among the public is growing," said Dollar. "And I personally feel that it is going to be difficult for our opposition to continue to ignore this public support when other states have recognized it."

and adopted similar legislation. Mississippi is the only state in the union without a statutory law providing for public access to most records of government at the state and local level.

Dollar's bill excludes certain documents from disclosure which would violate areas of obvious confidentiality, such as tax returns, adoption records, medical records, and financial data which would place an individual or business at competitive disadvantage.

The bill also excludes from disclosure any documents relating to ongoing criminal investigations and related judicial records.

"We have tried to close any loopholes in the legislation," said Dollar, "and I believe the bill is in a more workable form than in past sessions."

Dollar's open records bill has cleared House committee on two separate occasions but has failed to gain approval by the full House of Representatives prior to the deadline during the 1980 and 1981 Sessions.

Dollar hopes that the 1982 bill will receive committee approval early in the session, thus allowing for consideration by the full House of Representatives weeks before the deadline in February.

Survey shows Lott currently strongest Stennis challenger

John Stennis is an early favorite to be re-elected to the United States Senate from Mississippi in the 1982 general election, according to a telephone survey conducted by the Political Science Department of Mississippi State University.

The survey showed that Stennis would receive about 70 percent of the vote against any of the three possible Republican challengers—Leon Bramlett, runner-up for the 1978 Republican gubernatorial nomination; Charles Pickering, 1979 candidate for attorney general; or Bobby Richardson, Northern District Highway Commissioner. If the election were held today, Fifth district Congressman Trent Lott would run the strongest race. The survey revealed he would receive about 41 percent of the vote to Stennis' 59 percent if the election were held today.

The figures were based upon a series of questions asking likely voters whether they had heard or read about the possible candidates and requiring them to rank the candidates they recognized in order of preference. So far, only Stennis and Richardson have formally announced candidacies for the Senate race.

According to the survey, Stennis' strong showing was based upon a number of factors including performance while in office, effectiveness in the Senate, and his experience.

When likely voters were requested to mention up to four items which would make them want to vote for or against Stennis, about 70 percent referred to things they liked about the veteran Senator, while 30 percent noted things they disliked.

The three factors most frequently mentioned as Stennis' strong points were the conviction that he is doing a "good job" in the Senate, his seniority and power in the Senate, and his experience.

Other factors helping Stennis are the perception that he has helped the state, that he is honest, and that he is a "good man."

Only one factor stood out as encouraging a vote against Stennis—his age. One-fourth of all responses relate to his age of 80, and are expressions of concern that he might be too old to serve effectively.

A second indicator of Stennis' strength was provided by a series of questions asking people to rate the job performance of prominent public officials. Lott ranked highest, with 74 percent of likely voters rating his performance "positively" (excellent or good), and only 22 percent negatively (fair or poor).

Senator Thad Cochran received a 66 percent positive rating and 25 percent negative rating; President Ronald Reagan a 65 percent positive and 32 percent negative rating; and Governor William Winter a 60 percent positive and 37 percent negative rating.

Another explanation for Stennis' strength was the near universal familiarity of voters with his name. Some 97 percent of likely voters claim to have heard or read something about him.

Republicans Bramlett and Richardson are the least visible Senatorial hopefuls, with 44 percent of likely voters having heard or read about them.

Richardson's name is much more familiar to voters in the northernmost First and Second Congressional Districts than in the other districts.

Lott and Pickering are the most visible Republican hopefuls with 80 percent and 70 percent, respectively.

Lott's name recognition is highest in his own Fifth Congressional District, and lowest in the First and Second Districts. An increase in name recognition would somewhat help all Republican hopefuls in the general election except Pickering.

If Lott's name were as familiar to voters as Stennis', his estimated percentage of the two-party vote would increase from 41 percent to almost 48 percent. Stennis would still be favored over the other three Republicans, receiving a minimum of 43 percent of the vote.

In a two-way race between Stennis and Lott, Lott would do best among people calling themselves Republicans; those living in the state less than ten years, those living in the Fifth Congressional District, and those with annual family incomes over $20,000.

Stennis would run strongest among those living in the First and Second Districts, those over 61 years of age, Democrats, blacks, and the under-$10,000 income group. Other groupings such as whites and residents of the Third and Fourth Congressional Districts would split more evenly between the two candidates.

The survey included interviews with 618 Mississippi residents between October 19 and November 19. Statistically the survey was computed to be 95 percent accurate so that the percentages are within 5 percent of those which would have been obtained by interviewing all eligible voters in the state.

Chamber

Citizen of Hancock County during ceremonies which also featured several humorous anecdotes by Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye.

Outgoing chamber President, Dick Kosbab announced Gibson as the chamber's selection after keeping most of the crowd guessing while he announced a long list of accomplishments by the Waveland resident.

Gibson is the recipient of five previous outstanding service awards from the chamber. He has received the City of Waveland's Honorary and Distinguished Citizenship Award and the Governor's Meritorious Service Award.

He is currently active in the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club and Waveland Civic Association, and is a member of the Hancock General Hospital governing board.

Gibson has served as vice-president and president of the chamber twice. He was also appointed by Governor William Winter to serve as a member of the Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority.

Between 1972 and 1977 Gibson was a member of the State Park Commission serving as president of the commission his last year.

After the presentation of Gibson's award, Dye said, "I've been doing what I like to do."

He praised his wife, who he said should have received the award for her time at home rearing their four children while he was active in the community. Paul J. Breau III was inducted as president following final remarks by Kosbab.

Breau stressed the need to increase membership in Chamber.

"We cannot open the doors to the chamber unless we pay the light bills without interruption," he said.

Contributions and loans were noted as the chamber's priority for the chamber.

"In any organization, you need high morale and confidence in leadership," he said.

Breau promised to provide that leadership and noted, "We will have many projects to complete."

"Our members will have to help people because we want love to be our motivating force."

"We pledge we will work hard, and will have projects and we hope the entire membership will get behind this organization in 1982," he concluded.

After several humorous jokes including tales about Mississippi State and Ole Miss rivals, Dye focused his 15 minute speech to 30 seconds of serious talk about the economy.

He noted causes of economic "tramas" are beyond the control of the leadership of this state.

However, he noted current economic conditions will force leadership to determine priorities of where your tax dollar should be spent. For that reason he said the economic situation may be good.

He suggested education, health care of senior citizens, and transportation particularly highways, should be given top priority.

And he promised to make a diligent effort to find where those priorities are.

Also during the ceremony Kosbab presented Jerry Benigno, chamber secretary whose resignation will become effective Dec. 31, with a plaque showing the chamber's appreciation of her work.

"She created an entirely new look for the chamber" and has made people really aware of what the chamber is and what it does. Our financial base has never been more sound," he said.

Pat Harvill, 1981 membership drive chairman, presented a plaque to Nancy Demoran, who obtained the most new members during the membership drive.

Study shows low crime among Nam veterans

A Department of Justice study showing that Vietnam Era veterans are less likely than non-veterans to be in prison has been applauded by J. L. Dozier, Jackson VA regional office director.

"The study debunks still another derogatory myth about our youngest group of veterans," he said.

Dozier added, "Quite frankly, I have been dismayed at the attention given to unfounded suicide, divorce and unemployment statistics about our Vietnam veterans. None are supported by credible studies."

The Veterans Administration noted that Statistics Department of Vietnam Era Veterans are the best educated in the history of our nation and the vast majority are working full-time with many earning above-average incomes in high level occupations.

"I realize there are some Vietnam veterans who may still suffer some physical or emotional trauma, and we will not shortchange them," Dozier said.

"We are dedicated to reaching each and every one of these people either through our nationwide Vet Centers or through quality medical care."

Copies of the bulletin "Veterans in Prison" are available from the Bureau of Statistics Department of Veterans Affairs.

Coolers for corpses eyed by supervisors

By BRENT MACY
Hancock County Coroner Carl Banderet Monday requested the Board of Supervisors purchase a cooler for the county so corpses can be retained here until autopsies are performed.

Currently there are no coolers anywhere in the county and bodies must be shipped to Gulfport for storage.

Banderet suggested the board purchase a double cooler costing approximately $2,500, as opposed to a single cooler costing approximately one-third that amount.

The board requested Banderet obtain specifications for both types so the product can be advertised and bids obtained.

Banderet explained the problems he has been having with the recent rash of murders and deaths in the county.

He noted the body of a recent Hancock murder victim was taken to Gulfport Memorial Hospital while Banderet had the necessary forms signed by officials to authorize the autopsy.

Problems arose when Banderet had difficulty finding a doctor in Gulfport who felt authorized to perform the task.

After obtaining approval from Circuit Judge Leslie B. Grant in Gulfport for the autopsy, a doctor in Gulfport continued to question whether the autopsy was authorized and requested District Attorney Albert Nacale also grant approval.

Banderet said he called Nacale who requested the body be transported from Memorial Hospital to Gulf Coast Co-munity Hospital where it stayed for several more days before an autopsy could be undertaken.

"It's a crying shame we had to take the body all the way down there because there is no facility here," Banderet said.

He noted the anxiety which the problem caused the family.

Banderet stated a new autopsy system for Mississippi was slated to become effective last Oct. 1, but has never been funded by the Legislature.

That system would allow Hancock to transport bodies to Gulfport where a doctor paid by the state would perform the autopsy.

The county coroner would be paid only for gas mileage and inquiries, he said after the meeting. All paper work would be handled through the state agency.

Banderet said implementation of the plan, which called for three districts in the state—northern, central and southern—fell through before Oct. 1, when it was discovered that one of the doctors in the program was slated to receive a yearly salary greater than the governor's salary.

He said he doubted if the program would be funded by the Mississippi Legislature this January.

Walter Gex, board attorney, questioned if any action by the supervisors would be wise considering the upcoming legislative meeting.

"They (the legislature) went too far with the state medical examiner not to take this up again in January," he said. Banderet said, "I think it's going to fall through. It's going to cost an awful lot of money to put these three districts in."

In other business, the board agreed to purchase fire detectors for the Hancock County Jail after the board recessed the meeting for 15 minutes to talk in private with Sheriff Donald Peterson.

After convening, Gex said possible legal ramifications concerning the continuation of the county jail called for the private meeting.

verdicting for bids on the job, and without having the council declare the situation an emergency.

Bennett, after an earlier meeting, argued he had obtained the approval of all the board members by telephone before employing the company.

Taylor later denied that he ever received that phone call or ever gave the mayor approval to hire the firm.

Bennett also stated the company had submitted bids at the beginning of 1981 when yearly bids are accepted by the council.

He said he saved the council money by hiring the company without waiting to obtain bids, since potholes and sewer breaks become worse the longer they are neglected.

The resolution passed by the council paraphrases those statements by Bennett and states the council ratifies the actions taken by Mayor Larry Bennett on the 22nd day of September, 1981.

"Having received a favorable response from the majority of the members of the council, he (Bennett) proceeded to have the work accomplished," the resolution states.

The payment requested by Southland Enterprise is "not out of line" and the job was completed in a "very satisfactory manner for the city," the resolution adds.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex stated he thought the "intent" of the law was followed although exact legal procedure was not.

"You got a dollar's value for a dollar spent," he said. He advocated the council approve the payment and noted they would probably be sued by the company if they refused the payment.

"I don't think you can argue the work wasn't done," he said.

TIMBERLINE

There are still plenty of baby trees available to Mississippi landowners for purchase and planting this winter, according to a recent Mississippi Forestry Commission seedlings inventory.

Loblolly pines were in greatest supply (10,632,000). There were also three million Slash Pine seedlings yet unclaimed as well as 53,000 Longleaf pine seedlings.

A smaller supply of several species of hardwood seedlings and cuttings was also on hand at the time of the November 18 seedling count.

The available hardwoods include Sycamore (10,840), Sweetgum (12,900), Black Locust (22,400) and 99,200 Cottonwood cuttings.

The Commission is additionally holding 1,233 pounds of Loblolly, 845 pounds of Slash Pine and 292 pounds of Shortleaf pine seeds for sale on a first come, first served basis.

Hancock Countians interested in obtaining trees for delivery and planting beginning in December and continuing through the winter months should contact County Forester Rand D. Rietz for a price list and application form. His office is located in the Hancock County Courthouse, phone 467-4728.

VA Questions

Q: I attended school under the GI Bill four years ago and I still have two years before my 16-year time limit expires. When I quit school before I had an overpayment with the Veterans Administration, I would like to return to school, but I am afraid to ask for enrollment without paying the overpayment. Will I keep getting letters from the VA about this debt?

A: You don't have to pay back the overpayment to enroll with the VA. You can enroll with the VA and then pay back the overpayment when you are able to. The VA will not sue you for the overpayment if you enroll without paying it back. The VA will only sue you if you do not enroll and do not pay back the overpayment.

Amateur photographers score in Wildlife contest

Fourteen amateur photographers have won $2,000 in prizes for their winning color photographs of "Nature in the World" in the National Wildlife Federation's eleventh annual photography contest.

Their award-winning photographs, which were chosen from more than 15,000 entries, appear in the December-January issue of the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly magazine, National Wildlife.

National Wildlife readers were invited last year to submit photographs from wherever their travels took them.

Winning photos include scenes from such diverse places as the Caribbean, Africa, Alaska, and the Galapagos Islands.

Chosen for the back cover of National Wildlife was Bill McRae's shot of the silhouette of a bighorn sheep at sunset. McRae, a 47-year-old iron worker who lives in Fairfield, Mont., caught the bighorn as it paused atop a peak near Mr. St. Helens in Washington state.

"The eruption created some beautiful sunsets and sunsets," McRae explained, "and because I knew where a group of the sheep congregated, I was able to plan out this shot." It was taken at 1:00 of a second with a 400 mm lens set at f8.

Such planning was the key to success for many of the National Wildlife photo winners.

Fritz Polking, of Greven, West Germany, took his winning shot in a more exotic locale—Ecuador's Galapagos Islands National Park. The 45-year-old shop owner photographed a Galapagos hawk just as it was about to settle into the shell of a giant tortoise.

The unusual picture was taken with a 200 mm lens set at f8 at 1-500 of a second.

The Vancouver Aquarium in Canada was the scene of Roy Manstian's winning photograph. The U.S. Navy mechanical engineer from Lyme, Conn., captured the steady gaze of a young harbor seal, its head just above the water in its outdoor pool. Manstian took the shot at 1-250 of a second with a 200 mm lens set at f8.

Other prize-winning photographers, who will share in the prize money, are:

Alaska: Don Cornelius, a Ketchikan, photographed a flock of mallards basking in the misty, warm water discharge of a power plant near Anchorage.

Helen Rhode, of Cooper Landing, for her photograph of a bull moose, which settled down for a rest in McKinley National Park just twenty feet from Mrs. Rhode's late husband, Cecil.

Arizona: Alex Kerstitch, of Tucson, who took an underwater photograph of two sea slugs mating in Mexico's Sea of Cortez—an area where few sea creatures have been photographed in the past.

Colorado: Horat K. Dreger, of Boulder, whose winning shot was of a young fox and a friend examining a turtle they caught in a creek near their home.

Florida: Dick Harrison, of Sarasota, whose winning photograph is an underwater shot of a marine biologist face-to-face with a Nassau grouper in the waters off San Salvador Island in the Bahamas.

Pennsylvania: Ronald Engle, of Dillsburg, took his photograph of three captive white-footed mice as they peered over the edge of a burrow.

Texas: Wyman P. Melzer, Jr., of Lubbock, for his close-up of a black-tailed jackrabbit poised in a meadow in northern Texas.

Utah: Kent R. Keller, of Ogden, whose winning photograph is of an ewe and a lamb digging for forage on a snowy ridge in Yellowstone National Park.

Rich Krümer, of Salt Lake City, who set up a blind near the bird feeder in his back yard to get a close-up of a black-capped chickadee atop a fence post.

Washington: David C. Fritts, of Woodinville, who on a visit to Kenya's Amboseli National Park photographed a reclining female cheetah and her four three-week-old cubs as they stared intently into his camera.

West Germany: George Nussler, of Willich, West Germany, for his photo of a lone pinecone on a windswept, symmetrically patterned beach at New York's Fire Island.

Entries for the 1982 National Wildlife Federation photo contest are now being accepted until the deadline of June 30, 1982. A total of $2,000 in cash prizes will be awarded, and all winning photographs will be included in the December-January 1982 issue of National Wildlife.

The theme of the twelfth annual photo contest is "Nature Around the World." Photographs may be taken not only in the U.S., but anywhere in the world. All entries must be in color and may be of wildlife, plants, scenery, or people participating in outdoor activities.

Entries are limited to 100 per person. Slides are preferred, but prints up to 8 x 10 are acceptable. Each entry must bear the name, address, and telephone number of the photographer, and should be sent with a brief description of where, when, and how the shot was taken, the make and model of the camera and lens used, and the exposure, setting. Send entries to: Photo Contest, National Wildlife, 225 E. Michigan Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202.

Ole Miss wins, USM places fourth

The University of Southern Mississippi's golf team in Hattiesburg finished fourth in the 21st Mississippi Intercollegiate Championship in Greenville recently.

The Eagles were tied for first after 27 holes of play but slipped back on the final day.

The Ole Miss Rebels won the championship for the second straight year with a 54-hole total of 876. That gave them a 17 shot victory over Mississippi State and Delta State. USM finished with a total of 895 strokes.

Tom Bauer shot rounds of 71-76-72 for a three-over par total of 219 to lead the USM golfers.

The other Eagle golfers and their scores were: Oscar McClellan (73-75-77 equals 225), Ken Chomyn (80-73-73 equals 226), Dale Snellman (76-77-77 equals 230) and Ron Hickman (77-75-80 equals 232). Bauer has the lowest scoring average this fall. He has averaged 75.22 strokes over nine rounds. Chomyn is next, with a 75.44 average, followed by McClellan (75.78), Snellman (76.78) and Hickman (78.56).

Other golfers with a least six rounds this fall are Russell West (79.33), Todd Bradley

(79.67), Jamie Sydboten (80.33),

Kim Bradley and Lorne McWilliams have both averaged 82.33 strokes over three rounds. The Eagles have one tournament remaining on their fall schedule. They will participate in the Bluebonnet Invitational in Houston, Tex. on Dec. 9-8.

Governor's Council to present physical fitness, sports workshop

Due to the increasing public interest and concern in physical fitness and well-being, the Mississippi Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports will present The Turnaround Workshop, a Campbell Soup Company program, on January 20, 1992, from 8 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. at the Downtown Holiday Inn in Jackson.

The Turnaround Workshop is a unique consumer information program devoted to good eating and exercise. Conducting the workshop are professionals in each field: Dr. Henry Jordan, Philadelphia psychiatrist who is director of the Institute for Behavioral Education and a Clinical Associate Professor of Psychiatry, University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Judith Stern, Associate Professor of Nutrition and Director of the Food Intake Laboratory Group, University of California, Davis; and Dr. Charles Kuntzleman, owner and national program director of the Fitness Finders Program and National consultant to the YMCA Activities and Feelin' Good programs. "Campbell's Turnaround Workshop is one of the top programs that addresses healthy living in a positive, common-sense manner geared toward the general public and experts in the health and fitness fields," said Governor William Winter. "It can have a profound effect on educators and health professionals looking for new programs to bring to their schools and organizations."

The workshop opens with a multi-media overview, followed by individual workshop sessions with each of the panelists.

Presenting the workshop in cooperation with the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports are the Mississippi affiliates of the American Diabetes Association and the American Heart Association; the Mississippi Health Systems Agency; the YMCA; the Mississippi Alliance of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance; the Council on Aging; the Mississippi Dietetic Association; the State Board of Health; and the State Department of Education. Preregistration for the workshop is $7 by January 6. Registration after that date and on the morning of the workshop is $10.

keeping you in touch

By Don Roberts
District Manager

During the holidays, most everyone wants to reach out and touch faraway friends and family with a long distance call. In fact, Christmas Day is one of the busiest days of the year for the telephone network—so busy that calls sometimes can't get through.

Don't risk not being able to get through with your Christmas calls this year. Call early, before Christmas Day (which comes on Friday this year). Or call later, on the Saturday and Sunday after Christmas. That way, you'll be sure to make your holiday calls quickly and without inconvenient delays.

Don't forget, too, that rates are lowest when you dial long distance calls the 14 way all day on Saturdays, till 5 p.m. on Sundays, and every night from 11 p.m. till 8 a.m.

During the holidays and all year round take advantage of long distance discount periods. And save money.

Just in time for your holiday shopping convenience—the Bell PhoneCenter Stores now accept VISA and MasterCard bank credit cards on any purchase of $10 or more. So you can use your credit card to buy pretty smart phone and phone service gifts.

There are so many Bell phone gifts to choose from, you may decide on convenient Bell Gift Certificates, starting at $20. They're good for phones, phone service, even for long distance calls. Visit us soon at the Bell PhoneCenter Store nearest you.

Long distance rates do not apply to 011 dialed calls, operator handled calls, coin telephone calls, or calls from a hotel or motel. Different discounts apply to Alaska and Hawaii.

Someone's waiting.
Reach out with long distance.

Rockwell painting reproduced on seals

The Christmas Seals this year reproduce a 1933 painting by the late Norman Rockwell, a favorite American artist.

"Christmas Seals are a tradition in Mississippi," says Mrs. Allen Edwards of Indianola, president of the Mississippi Lung Association. "Each year Christmas Seals have a special message and support the lung health crusade of Mississippi's Christmas Seal voluntary health organization."

The 1991 Christmas Seal design was originally the holiday cover of the "Saturday Evening Post" on Dec. 16, 1933. The painting portrays a happy scene with a grandfather riding a hobby horse with his grandson. In keeping with the Rockwell tradition, the seal is full of sentiment and a happy bridge of the generation gap, Edwards says.

"Christmas Seals are distributed in Mississippi and throughout the nation annually. They decorate holiday gifts and mail, but more importantly, they raise funds to prevent and control lung diseases and respiratory problems," Edwards reports. In Mississippi, Christmas Seal-supported programs provide patient services, education and medical research outside the Jackson area.

Mississippians of all ages, she explains.

Although Rockwell died in 1978, his paintings are remembered fondly by all Americans. Rockwell's wife will be serving as Massachusetts area Christmas Seal chairman this year, Edwards adds.

GRUMPY CUSTOMER—Collecting a blood sample for a brucellosis test from a bellowing bull confined by a cattle press and head gate at Billy Nicalse's ranch in the Lyman Community is Dr. C. Thomas Favre Jr., DVM, of Long Beach.

Kiln native returns as versatile veterinarian

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A Kiln native returned to the Hancock-Harrison County area recently to establish a veterinary practice to treat an array of animals ranging from miniature poodles to Brahma bulls.

Dr. C. Thomas Favre Jr., DVM, opened Beatline Veterinary Clinic in Long Beach after practicing as a junior partner with Gulfport veterinarians B.R. Scarborough and Paul Drake for about six years.

Favre earned his doctor of veterinary medicine degree at Tuskegee Institute near Auburn, Ala.; received a bachelor of science degree in animal science from Mississippi State University at Starkville; and graduated from Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville and Hancock North Central High School near White Cypress.

His parents, Mary Parsons Favre and Cornelius (Snook) Favre Sr., operate an egg and cattle farm in Kiln. His mother is also a retired Hancock County School District home economics teacher.

The young doctor explains that he developed an interest and love for animals as a boy and young man reared in a rural farm environment.

Although Favre is one of five doctors serving Hancock and west Harrison, he feels there is a need for a veterinarian who not only treats large animals, but is relatively close to "patients" in order to respond quickly to emergencies and at the same time understands local farmers' needs through lifelong acquaintances.

Two days each week, Favre travels to farms and ranches in the area to perform anything from minor operations to routine vaccinations.

The work is grueling, dangerous and requires an enormous amount of patience.

A typical work day "out of the office" for Favre begins early in the morning with organization of drugs and equipment to be used during the day.

But before he leaves on his rounds, the young doctor feeds his pet dog and cat and any other animals lodged at the clinic.

After hooking a portable cattle press and head gate to his pickup truck, he's ready for a hard day's work.

Favre regularly performs state subsidized blood tests on cattle for brucellosis, a disease which causes miscarriages in cows and can be transferred in milk to humans as undulant fever or wool sorters disease.

Usually, at the same time, cattle are vaccinated against brucellosis, other diseases and worms.

In order for Favre to conduct tests and treat cattle, each cow or bull must be immobilized in the portable unit, but it's dangerous work coaxing one of these furious animals into the device.

Even though the animal's head may be securely tied, occasionally the horns of an enraged cow or bull will graze Favre's arm while he's conducting a blood test.

Such a blow could break an arm or cause serious internal injuries, but the experienced veterinarian regards these dangers as normal occupational hazards. He is cautious to avoid any injury.

Favre also regularly floats (files) teeth and worms horses.

Although a twitch (a wooden handle with a light chain) is used to grasp a horse's nose for worming or floating, sometimes even a normally docile horse will jump or kick—an expected reaction when a large metal file is vigorously scrubbed across the animal's teeth or a plastic tube is slipped through a nostril into the horse's stomach for worming.

But these procedures are necessary for an animal's good health.

Favre explains that sometimes a horse's chewing action will cause sharp edges on teeth which can cut and infect the animal's mouth. So these sharp edges must be filed down to avoid such injury.

Worming kills and removes parasites from the horse's digestive system and allows the animal to properly assimilate hay and feed.

Many times owners of livestock also have pets which also need vaccinations, worming or treatment for various ailments.

Favre transforms his sensitive treatment methods utilized with the larger animals into a gentler mode when dealing with these small pets.

These methods include deftly opening a cat or dog's mouth to pop in a worming pill or painlessly inoculating a small animal with quickness and accuracy.

The veterinarian must utilize the same gentleness in aiding a mare struggling in labor with a difficult delivery or performing a pregnancy test by carefully reaching inside a horse's uterus to confirm the existence and age of a fetus simply by touch.

Although Favre is physically exhausted and dirty after a vigorous day of outdoor veterinary work, he enjoys his profession and looks forward to another day of caring for and healing animals.

Dupont plant depreciation could cost Pass school system $51,517

Superintendent LeRoy Lizana recently told the Pass Christian Municipal Separate School Board that action taken by the Harrison County Board of Supervisors could have a financial impact upon the Pass Christian School District.

He indicated the Board of Supervisors has granted the Dupont facility, located in the school district, a decrease in personal property valuation of approximately $3,533,000.

According to preliminary figures, this decrease in assessment due to depreciation would mean a loss of approximately $51,517 in anticipated revenue from local sources.

Lizana expressed concern that if this action is allowed to stand, the school district would be compelled to curtail some of the activities planned for this school year.

School Board Attorney Joel Blass assured the board that in his opinion the action by the Board of Supervisors was not binding on the City of Pass Christian.

The School Board requested Blass to investigate the matter and report back.

The board received an attendance report for the second school month of the 1981-82 school year.

The report shows a district enrollment of 1,359 students. This is an increase of 12 students over the enrollment for the second month of 1980-81.

However, in view of the fact that the district added kindergarten during this school year, the increase of only twelve students from last year indicates that, overall, there is a considerable decrease in student enrollment.

In the report it was noted that there are 78 students in kindergarten.

If the kindergarten students were omitted from the total report the school district enrollment would show a decrease of 68 students.

Lizana expressed a continuing concern with the decrease in enrollment. He informed the board that unless the current trend is reversed the school district could be faced with personnel problems at the end of the current school term.

Bills and invoices were approved. District maintenance bills totaled $5,311 for the month of October; Minimum Program bills were $7,213; Title IV-B $458; Title I $227 and consortium fund $287; Cafeteria bills totaled $16,965.

Payrolls for the month of October: District Maintenance, $52,197; Minimum Program $102,941; Cafeteria, $12,275; Title I, $9,970; and Student Activity, $507.

Bids were opened for cafeteria food supplies, color camera and recorder, secretary chair, calculator and tree removal services.

The board accepted the low bid of Wallace Business Machines for typewriters for the Pass High School at $599 each, and for electronic calculators at $138 each.

Lizana said the school district had received notification of a $10,000 grant from the State Department of Education.

The grant will be used to assist the district in completing its Accountability in Management (AIM) Program.

The State of Mississippi has mandated that all school districts within the state must have an approved accountability program in place by the fall of school year 1983-84.

The project grant in the Pass Christian School District will be used to develop the evaluation phase of the program.

In other business, the board:

—Authorized the hiring of three aides for the kindergarten program.

—Authorized the school district to participate in the Youth Employment Training Program.

—Approved a program of drug prevention for the Elementary Schools.

—Authorized change orders adding water fountains, and carpeting for the three kindergarten classrooms currently under construction.

—Authorized the Superintendent to advertise for bids for stage curtains for the Delisle Elementary School.

Fall leaf color changes explained

The question comes up every year about this time: Why do leaves change color in the fall?

According to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, autumn's cooler temperatures and shorter days cause chlorophyll — which gives leaves their green color in spring and summer — to break down and other pigments to form in the leaves.

The National Wildlife Federation's monthly publication for children notes that "a spectacular show of fall colors depends on the right amount of sunshine, rain, and cool temperatures."

New England falls are often so beautiful, because the region's weather is usually dry, bright, and cool.

Like everything else in nature, no two leaves are alike, and none of them will have the same splendid color combination each season. However, Ranger Rick explains that all the color variations are based on the following pigments:

—Yellow and Orange. These pigments are in the leaves all year long, but can't be seen in the spring and summer because they are covered by the green chlorophyll. These are the same pigments that make egg yolks yellow and carrots orange.

—Red and Purple. The bright red and purple colors of fall only show up on leaves of trees that produce a lot of sugar. Because trees need very cool and dry temperatures to produce sugar, these colors are mostly found in New England's trees. Red maples, which normally produce a lot of sugar, usually have red and purple leaves in autumn. But if fall temperatures are too warm, or there isn't enough sugar in the tree, a red maple's leaves will turn orange or yellow.

—Brown. Some leaves, like those on oak trees, do not change to bright colors in the fall, but become brown and drab. This is due to the presence of the chemical tannin, which mixes with the yellow and orange pigments, and turns the leaves brown.

And why do leaves fall?

Fall's cooler weather also causes the food products stored in the leaves to flow to safer quarters — the tree's branches and trunk. A thin layer of cells, called the "abscis layer," then forms across the stem which connects leaf to twig. With this link weakened, the leaf is broken off by an autumn breeze or eventually falls to the ground on its own weight.

Public invited to second annual Madrigal Dinner

The University of New Orleans will conduct its second Madrigal Dinner—A Christmas Celebration of Good, Merriment and Song Dec. 11, 12 and 13, in the UNO University Center.

Recreating a Christmas banquet in Elizabethan

England, the Friday and Saturday, Dec. 11 and 12, programs will begin at 6 p.m. with wassail; dinner and entertainment will begin at 6:45 p.m. The program on Sunday, Dec. 13, will begin at 4 p.m.

The 17-member UNO Chamber Singers, under the direction of Gerald Sousa, will perform several madrigals, songs written for small choral groups, while dressed in traditional period costumes as knights and ladies of the court.

Songs will include traditional Christmas carols such as "Kranz Guter's Silent Night" and "Good King Wenceslaus" as well as less popularized songs like "Angels and Virgins" (14th Century English) and "Riu, Riu, Chiu" (16th Century Spanish).

Other entertainers will include court jesters, mimes, clowns, and magicians. Included on the gala dinner menu will be roast duck and the traditional flaming figgy (plum) pudding.

Tickets for the programs, which are open to the public, are $15 a person, including tax. For further information, call the UNO Student Activities Board, 286-5349.

UNO chancellor reveals five-year campus beautification plan

A five-year plan to beautify and improve the University of New Orleans campus has been

Landscaping will emphasize the new cluster arrangements and will include

Student Services, a university inn-conference center to meet the demand for workshops, non-credit courses and public service programs and accommodate those at University Center; expansion of the 'Cove,' a campus food facility; and 'The Stack,' the proposed food, recreation and lounge building located at the old Naval Air Station smokestack site and including a second story deck and lounge overlooking Lake Pontchartrain.

The Assembly Center, presently under construction on the east campus, will serve many of the social, recreational, civic and athletic needs of both UNO and the New Orleans community," says Richelle.

"We are also proposing a multi-purpose support facility that will provide locker rooms, food services, racquetball courts, offices, and equipment check out and storage," he says.

CAMPUS CHANGES—An architect's drawing of the present entrance to the University of New Orleans at Leon C. Simon near Elysian Fields, and above the entrance as it is proposed in the university's revised campus master plan.

revealed by UNO Chancellor Leon J. Richelle.

The plan, a revision of the campus master plan, calls for extensive landscaping, improved access to the campus, architectural clusters and protected walkways, a relocation of campus automobile traffic, improvement of the link between the university's east and west campuses, and the establishment of public services that strengthen the ties between the university and the community.

Explaining the philosophy behind the plan, which he calls a revised statement of the future for UNO, and its new approach to its environment, Richelle says, "Art should be an integral part of a good educational environment and architecture is quite prominent among the arts. At a university, our physical surroundings do a lot to shape our thought. They therefore should reflect the finest qualities of the human spirit and awaken our noblest aspirations."

The updated master plan, he says, embodies a more positive philosophy of architectural design, recommends diverse building forms and materials, and encourages the use of landscaping to achieve a more pleasant environment.

Noting that when UNO opened in 1958 on the site of an old Naval Air Station, it inherited a number of "temporary" frame structures, Richelle says by 1985 all of these structures will have been demolished to make room for new construction.

"The only exception will be the old smokestack," he says, explaining that a standing resolution of the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors supports the Request of the UNO Alumni Association that the smokestack be retained as a memento of the campus origin.

According to Richelle, a new recreational facility, to be called "The Stack," is proposed there.

The plan envisions new buildings in clusters, connected by covered walkways, which will both protect pedestrians from the weather and create natural courtyards and outdoor meeting spaces.

outdoor sculpture in appropriate locations," says the chancellor.

"The planting of a variety of small and large trees, shrubs, evergreens and ament plants will provide shading, screening, protection from the elements and space identification landmarks. The use of flowering trees and shrubs and fragrant plants will provide seasonal interest, enhance the environment and give the campus color," he explains.

He adds that benches, arbors, light standards and water fountains will be constructed of such maintenance-free materials as stone, concrete, brick and metals.

New construction proposed in the academic, institutional services and student services areas include: A new Academic Building, which has already received legislative approval and is currently in the planning stage; a new business administration building attached by a passageway to the present building which will be used as a general classroom building; a new liberal arts building wing to consolidate faculty and staff offices; a two-story addition to the health and physical education center to house offices and laboratory space; and the expansion of the fine arts complex to provide additional studio space and an auditorium.

The second and third buildings of a three-building life sciences complex are nearing completion, and a contract has been let for a multi-purpose building to accommodate the university police department, a laboratory for the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism Administration, a central store, and printing services.

Institutional Services: A visitors center will be built to provide assistance and information and to distribute maps, tickets for university events, and literature on current campus activities. A two-story addition to the administration building is also anticipated. Plans are already completed for the addition of a third and fourth floor to the library totaling 200,000 square feet.

IT TAKES BIG DOLLARS

It takes big dollars to serve business, industry and communities with natural gas, particularly since this fuel is being found further and further away from our traditional markets.

Our commitment to our customers is nowhere better illustrated than by our increased capital spending. In 1980, expenditures totaled $105 million for new onshore and offshore gas supply facilities, maintenance and reinforcement of the pipeline system and joint venture gas supply projects.

For 1981, we are spending $170 million, primarily for gas supply projects and pipeline facilities. While the price of natural gas in the field is increasing, so is the cost of pipelines and other facilities necessary to bring it where it is needed.

Teachers of handicapped offered special materials

Teachers in Mississippi now have access to instructional materials for the handicapped. These materials are available on a free loan basis from the Special Materials Project in Silver Springs, Md.—a project of the Association for Education of the Deaf under contract with the U.S. Department of Education.

"This service is provided as a support in the event that needed materials are not available from a local resource center," a project spokesman reports.

A Handicapped Learner Materials Collection consists of a variety of instructional materials in different media formats (16mm films, filmstrips, games, kits, etc.) These materials have been selected on the basis of suggestions made by educators of the handicapped and cover a wide range of handicapping conditions and grade levels," the spokesman explains.

Handicapped learner materials are circulated throughout the United States and its territories from the Special Materials Project's central library in Indianapolis, Ind.

Additional information, catalogs, and application forms may be obtained from the Special Materials Project, 614 Thayer Avenue, Silver Spring, Maryland 20910 or telephone (301) 587-5940.

USM offering state's only purchasing course

The University of Southern Mississippi College of Business Administration has the only emphasis in purchasing in the state as well as the support of purchasing professionals whose companies provide opportunities for student interns.

The purchasing emphasis in the Department of Marketing was established with the help of the Mississippi Association of Purchasing Management which provides the internships and scholarships.

"The job market for purchasing graduates is very good now and expected to get better," says Dr. Tom Ivy marketing department chairman.

Recent U.S. Department of Labor statistics regarding growth potential for various occupations forecasts an annual growth rate of 35 percent or 13,800 new purchasing positions per year.

"The idea of purchasing education is relatively new and the USM program was implemented to fill the need for professionals trained specifically in purchasing," said Dr. Alvin Williams who along with Dr. William Smith is teaching the courses now offered.

The university has three courses: principles of purchasing, contract administration and negotiating, and logistics, and is considering more.

"We had a great deal of input from purchasing practitioners in setting up the program so the graduates have good contacts with industry when they graduate," said Williams.

Carlos Soza, with Hughes Aircraft, a past chairman of the National Association of Purchasing Management certification board and one of the developers of the Certified Purchasing Management exam helped USM professors set up the program.

The program has an advisory council composed of MAPM members. The council presents four scholarships per year and provides summer internships in industry.

During each spring semester students intern in the USM purchasing office where they learn state government policies.

One of the MAPM scholarships is for a purchasing professional wishing to take the courses at USM. "There has been interest among people in industry in taking some of the courses and we may develop seminars or in-service programs if there is a demand for them," says

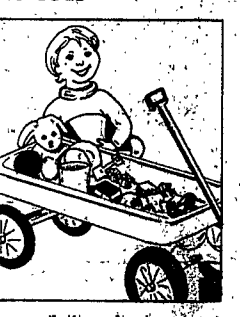

Williams. The first marketing student to choose the marketing emphasis, Ben Simmons of Hattiesburg, will graduate in May.

WINTERIZING TOYS

Just as you prepare your home and car for the oncoming winter chill and snowstorms, you can show your children how to winterize their toys. The whole family can participate and, in the process, you'll be teaching the children about responsibility and pride of ownership. You'll also help extend the life of the playthings.

Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc. (TMA), the industry trade association, has some suggestions for winterizing playthings. First have the children gather all their toys from the yard and sandbox and designate a "winter service area" in the garage, driveway or basement. Have supplies ready such as soap and a bucket of water, cleaning rags, sewing kit, oil, can steel wool and anti-rust spray paint. (Check for toxic levels if painting toys for children under three.)

Each toy should receive a maintenance check, and, if it won't be used indoors during the cold months, a "winterization space" is assigned; be it a storage box in the attic or garage or, if you live in an apartment, a closet or basement storage space will do.

Bicycles and wagons should be wiped clean with a damp rag, dried off and wheels oiled. Any rust spots can be sanded with steel wool and repainted. Adults should always supervise any paint or oil jobs. A winterized wagon or doll carriage can double as a "storage garage" for smaller toys and be covered with an "old, clean sheet or heavy piece of plastic."

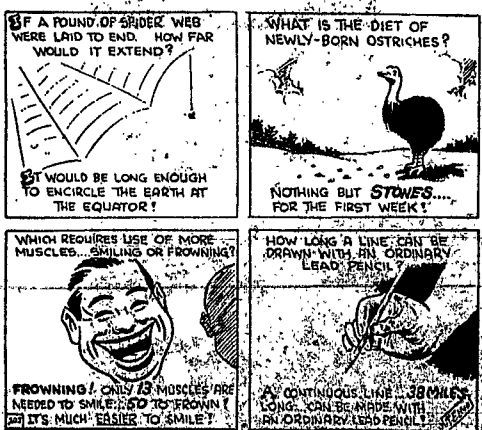

Small cars, trucks, boats and planes are winterized in the same way. Make sure the undercarriage of cars and trucks are checked for cobwebs and hidden dirt. "Road test" all wheeled vehicles by pushing them back and forth. If necessary, oil the axles to prevent wheels from dragging and rusting. Apply a spot of oil to a toy plane's propeller. "Take off" seems sluggish. If repainting metal vehicles, protect windows and any other part you don't want to be affected with masking tape. Plastic versions of these toys won't need rustproofing or painting. Just a fast wash and dry, wheel and propeller check, if any of these toys have been torn or bent resulting in exposed sharp points or edges, discard them.

Sandbox and beach toys such as pails, shovels, balls and flying discs, should be thoroughly washed and dried. Any dolls that were used in play competitions, should have their vinyl parts wiped with a soapy, damp rag and dried completely. Check the doll's clothing for any sewing repairs and then hand or machine wash according to manufacturer's suggestions. Brush or comb hair and she's sure to look almost brand new and ready for indoor, winter play.

Next spring, after the snowing gives his approval, the children's toys will be ready to come out of hibernation.
